Advanced Placement Scholars

Because of their exceptional achievement on the college-level Advanced Placement (AP) Exams, 42 students received recognition from the College Board. About 20 percent of the 2.2 million students worldwide who took AP Exams performed at a sufficiently high level to earn an AP Scholar Award. In May 101 Wilson Hall students became eligible to receive college credit by earning a score of 3 or higher on at least one exam. Wilson Hall's average passing rate is 88%, above the global average passing rate of 60%. There were 115 Wilson Hall students who took a total of 238 exams.

The AP is a global academic program in more than 100 countries. AP Exams, which students take after completing challenging college-level courses taught at their high school, are graded on a five-point scale (5 being the highest). Most of the nation's colleges and universities award credit, advanced placement, or both for grades of 3 or higher. To qualify to teach an AP course, teachers must attend an intensive AP workshop held during the summer. Wilson Hall offers 22 AP courses, more than any school in Sumter, Clarendon and Lee counties.

Jennings Frerichs, Jeremiah Jones and Mary Parish Williams, Class of '24, received the AP Scholar with Distinction Award, the highest offered, for earning an average grade

Wilson Hall Hosts Learning Conference

Mr. Lee Gandy, Mrs. Kristall Hanson, Mrs. Teresa O'Hare Alexander '98 & Mr. Eddie Talley take a break during the conference for professional learning and pedagogical development held on campus.

Wilson Hall served as a host site for the Science of Teaching and School Leadership Academy for four days in July. In addition to the 23 faculty members from our school, 21 teachers from Hammond School and Spartanburg Day School also attended. The academy is the Center for Transformative Teaching and Learning's flagship Mind, Brain, and Education (MBE) conference for professional learning and pedagogical development. MBE is a young science started at Harvard University 25 years ago by uniting the fields of neuroscience, psychology, and education. The educators and school leaders who attended received valuable science of teaching and learning resources created by teachers for teachers. They learned from a select group of thought leaders and veteran educators, joined a network of teachers dedicated to research-informed practices, and studied tools that can help them elevate their students' academic achievement and social and emotional development. The conference was organized by Mr. Brent Kaneft '00, Head of School.

Palmetto Boys/Girls State Conventions

The following members of the Class of '24 were chosen by the American Legion or American Legion Auxiliary to attend the Palmetto Boys State and Girls State Conventions: Ann Weathers Blankenship, Tucker Burnette, Slade Custer, Jones DesChamps, Eddie Donald, Alli Reagan Fidler, Jennings Frerichs, Landon Gilley, Mary Margaret Griffin, Talan Griffin, Bella Grudzinski, Jeremiah Jones, Davis Lee, Ben Reynolds, Zach Scholz, Maury Shuler and Mary Parish Williams.

Students, who submitted an application and were interviewed by the organizations, were selected based on the following criteria: demonstrated interest in government, leadership, character, scholarship, and loyalty and service to their schools.

The boys convention was held at Anderson University and the girls at Presbyterian College from June 11-17. The conventions were unique ways for rising high school seniors to learn about the American system of government and politics by participating in a mock governmental system. Delegates also had the opportunity to explore potential career paths through the different programs including the Performing Arts School, Criminal Justice Academy, and Law School.

Renaissance Reading Scholar Program

In the pursuit to build signature programs aligned with the school's mission, the Renaissance Reading Scholar Program was introduced for the 2023-24 school year. This voluntary program for grades 6th-12th encourages students to read rigorous, intellectually challenging literature, often, but not limited to, literary classics. The books selected are those that our faculty feels are important for students to have read before high school or college. This selection is also informed by the Advanced Placement reading list and past Pulitzer Prize and National Book Award winners.

The Renaissance Reading Scholar Program began at Norfolk Academy, under the guidance of then Head of School, Dennis Manning. At Wilson Hall, we have slightly altered the program to fit our community and school mission. Mrs. Hayes Jones, librarian, is the coordinator of the program.

Students may choose six or more titles and discuss them with the faculty or staff sponsor. The meeting with the sponsor should reveal that the student understands the reading and can engage in an intellectual discussion. Students will not receive credit for the book until the sponsor confirms they have an adequate understanding of the selection. Students may begin reading in the summer, but the faculty meetings should be scheduled throughout the academic year.

High school students who complete at least six books will be recognized each year as Renaissance Readers (added to transcript). Students completing all four years of the program will be recognized as Renaissance Scholars (added to transcript) and during the Senior Awards Program. Middle school students who complete at least six books will also be recognized each year as Renaissance Readers. Students that complete three years in middle school will be honored and recognized as Renaissance Scholars during the Academic Awards Program of their 8th-grade year.

KEYSTONE PROGRAM: CHAPEL & CONNECT

Through the Keystone program, the school offers two programs for students, Chapel and Connect. Students in 1st-12th regularly attend chapel services in the Founders Chapel, focusing on developing positive character traits with a faith-based perspective. Qualities such as gratitude, integrity, kindness, love, perseverance, bravery, and humility are explored. For Chapel the school often welcomes guest speakers such as published authors, local youth ministers, and veterans.

Middle and high school alternate weeks in Chapel. On weeks that one set of students is not in Chapel, that group engages in Connect, which is small group programming. Led by faculty members in homerooms, Connect is tailored to each grade level.

The Connect program for the middle school features an extension of the tenants of the Chapel program and focuses on developing positive character traits. Middle school students also participate in The Social Institute. The goal of this program is to empower students to navigate social-emotional health, social media, and technology positively through comprehensive, gamified lessons. The program reinforces character strengths like empathy, integrity, and teamwork.

The Connect program for the high school varies by grade level. Seniors participate in a financial literacy program that covers such topics as budgeting, credit issues, home buyer education, insurance, and investing. Juniors have community leaders visit campus to speak about leadership and service for the first semester and spend the second semester on college counseling.

Sophomores discuss current events and have a quarter of the year devoted to college counseling. Freshmen focus on Mind Brain Education (MBE), also known as the science of learning. MBE is the intersection of neuroscience, psychology, and education to identify research-informed practices that can be used to promote student achievement. Sumter Cooper '23 and Sam Fisher '23 are Wilson Hall's first Advanced Placement (AP) Capstone Diploma recipients. Wilson Hall is the only school in the area approved by the College Board to offer the AP Capstone Diploma Program, which is based on two, yearlong AP courses: AP Seminar and AP Research. The AP Capstone Diploma is granted to students who earn scores of 3 or higher in AP Seminar and AP Research and on four additional AP Exams of their choosing.

Rather than teaching subject-specific content, the AP Research and Seminar courses develop students' skills in research, analysis, evidence-based arguments, collaboration, writing, and presenting. Both courses guide students through completing a research project, writing an academic paper, and making a presentation on their project. Students who complete the two-year program can earn one of two different AP Capstone awards (diploma or certificate) which are valued by colleges across the United States and around the world.

The College Board developed the AP Capstone Diploma program at the request of higher education professionals who saw a need for a systematic way for high school students to begin mastering these skills before college. Only 38 schools in South Carolina offer the program and Wilson Hall is one of only five private schools in the state to offer it.

Olivia Beasley, Jennings Frerichs, Mary Margaret Griffin, Rhayne Owens, Ben ReynoldsMaury Shuler, Addy Thornton and Mary Parish Williams, Class of '24, received the AP Seminar and Research Certificate which is granted to students who earn scores of 3 or higher in both AP Research and AP Seminar.
